INVESTOR CONFIDENCE INDEX FALLS TO 87.0 FROM 97.7 IN JULY

Boston, July 24, 2007 – State Street Global Markets, the investment research and trading arm of State Street Corporation (NYSE:STT), today released the results of the State Street Investor Confidence Index® for July 2007.

Global Investor Confidence fell by 10 points to a level of 87.0. Leading the decline were North American institutional investors, whose confidence fell sharply from 107.0 to 95.8. The decrease was mirrored in Europe, where confidence declined from 98.1 to 90.4. Asian investors, however, maintained their risk appetite at recent levels, and as a result the Index for that region showed only a modest decline from 84.0 to 83.5.

Developed through State Street Global Markets' research partnership, State Street Associates, by Harvard University professor Ken Froot and State Street Associates Director Paul O'Connell, the State Street Investor Confidence Index® measures investor confidence on a quantitative basis by analyzing the actual buying and selling patterns of institutional investors. The index is based on financial theory that assigns precise meaning to changes in investor risk appetite, or the willingness of investors to allocate their portfolios to equities. The more of their portfolio that institutional investors are willing to devote to equities, the greater their risk appetite or confidence.

"After the relatively strong readings we have recorded in recent months, it is perhaps not surprising to see something of a reversal this month," commented Froot. "Even as the macroeconomic growth picture has crystallized, the conflicting signals being sent by individual earnings announcements, coupled with the likelihood of tighter monetary conditions than previously expected, have resulted in a more cautious pattern of investor behavior this month.”

“Confidence among Asian investors has run somewhat below that exhibited among their European and North American counterparts for much of 2007,” added O’Connell. “As a result, Asian investors have displayed less susceptibility to the turmoil in the sub-prime and credit markets.”

July Results
Global	87.0
N. America	95.8
Europe	90.4
Asia-Pacific	83.5
